

Space needs to be provided both indoors and outdoors, so that children can move safely and develop their fundamental movement skills.

Time also needs to be scheduled to incorporate fundamental movement skills into structured and unstructured play.

Fundamental movement skills should be demonstrated, practiced and embedded into everyday activities such as transition times, music and movement, active play time, risky play, as well as intentional fundamental movement skill learning experiences.